Moreover the quantity allowed for consumption in Macao itself seems abnormally large, 1.673 balls a month, the Hongkong farmer, a good anthority, estimating it at 30 piculs (1,000 balls) Further, both the Canton and Kowleon Reports attribute some decrease in the Opium revenue to smuggling; and their Reports; read together with the data given in the Lappa Report, seem to place beyond doubt the fact of Opium still being conveyed from Macao into Chinese territory without passing through the Customs. SERIOUS RIOT AT NAN-K'ANG FU The Rev. E. S. Little, of the Methodist Epis. copal Church, writes as follows to the Daily

KIUKIANG, 9th November. Nan-k'ang, an important prefectural city or the Poyang Lake, has just been the scene of a very serious riot. In this city two missions are at work, the China Inland and the Methodis Episcopal, each baving chapels in the main business street of the city. For the past two or three months great unensiness on the part of the natives has prevailed and more than once i seemed as if open hostilities would take place. A month ago a demonstration was made against the C.I. M. chapel and the front part of the building partially beaten in the Methodist chapel was left undisturbed. From that time things have been gradually growing worse, Last week the whole of the military and civil students from the entire prefecture, amounting to six or seven thousand, together with their retainers, assembled in the city. Things might have passed off quietly had the literary examiner arrived at the fixed date, but he came a few days late, and during these days of waiting the students and roughs found a good opportunity for rioting which they did not allow to slip by unused: The examiner was delayed because a beat, chartered by the Nan-k'ang official to bring over a thousand tack worth of dainties from the prohands, and provisions all being lost. This accident caused the official to soud a messenger praying the examiner to put off his arrival two Three days ago at evening time a great crowd collected before the C. I. M. chapel and became disorderly. The Hien quickly came down and placed the ladies in safe keep ing in the yamen. The Hien is reported, in his harangue to the crowd, after having ad vised them to quietly disperse, to have said. "These foreigners have a right by treaty to preach Jesus here, and if you want to believe in Him and onter the church you can. I am an official and do not believe in Him, indeed I hear. tily detest Him." As soon as be had uttered demolished the property, leaving absolutely nothing intact. They then passed by my chapel to the opium refure, erented by the C LM and destroyed it. The Fu was here in his chair, attempting to quell the mob, but they smashed his chair and stoned him so that he had to fly to Mr. H. A. Herbert a grey (1.371). ais yamen to save his life. It was now about 8 o'clock at night, and the ladies were safe in the yamen. Six arrests were made two being stute ai; these were thrown into prison. The mob threatened to tear it down, but when they found they could not do this, they attempted to find the two native preachers, intending to hold them prisoners until the two literary men were released. But the China Inland Mission preacher was effectually concealed, and my assistant after soveral parrow escapes made his way to the yamen. Up to this time the Mathedist chapel had not been touched. Before daylight next morning my assistant determined to come direct to Kinking, 30 miles distant. He would in ordinary cases have gone out by the north gate, the gate wealways enter when approaching the city from Kinking. but he reasoned that in all probability men would be lying in wait there for him, so he went out of the east gate. Before day had broken thousands and thousands of excited rioters were passing hither and thither, and at dawn they made a descent on the Methodist chapel and in a short time the ladies had been sent on under escort to their Sacitorium at Ta-ku-t'an. These riots are becoming too frequent everywhere; what is the meaning of them? Are the Chinese officials hoping by steadily pursuing Queen's-road, when an address was given by this policy to drive foreigners out of the interior?
